PURITY OF ELECTIONS.

THE attitude of the Tonopah Bonanza regarding the purity of elections law has called forth the strongest expressions of approval from newspapers of the State and the editor of this paper is forced to believe candidates will have rough sledding if they attempt to invoke the law by putting one over the printers. Every paper from Mina to Montello and from Jarbidge to Searchlight has taken occasion to align itself with the Bonanza. The following extract from the editorial page of the Sparks Tribune shows how the wind is going to blow when the man with the lightning rod gets out into the open:

W. W. Booth of the Tonopah Bonanza has thrown down the gauntlet regarding the election law passed at the last session of the legislature, and has declared the law to be a dead letter. The other newspapers of the State feel the same way about that piece of legislation.

It is a conglomerate mass and so far as being law is concerned there is nothing except the title that is worthy of a place in the statutes of the State.

The people of the State of Nevada are guaranteed freedom of speech and freedom of the press and it cannot be taken away from them. If the newspapers of the State slander or libel any man in their columns, then that individual has redress by taking the proper steps in the civil courts; but to pass any law taking from the papers their right to express themselves is puerile.

One of the greatest blessings that the people have is their newspapers and one of the greatest features in the moulding of the laws of the State and the Nation is the newspapers. With trained men constantly on the qui vive, watching every piece of legislation or attempted legislation, watching every office holder and every aspirant for office, watching the trend of public events, through the columns of the press they keep the great mass of people informed of the doings of their officials and the progress of legislation, rendering it practically impossible to pass many injurious laws.

Once in a while a law like the last election law passes a legislature, with the intent of throttling the papers, but it is never given serious consideration. The newspapers of Nevada will conduct their campaign this fall on the same broad principles that have actuated other campaigns. And it will not be well for any candidate to come before the people with the deluded idea that the press is gagged by that piece of infantile legislation.

Newspapers are a protective force in the world's life that will ever remain and the great mass of the people will laugh at any body of politicians trying to silence them.

The Tonopah Bonanza has voiced the sentiments of the editors of the State when it asserts that the new law is a dead letter.

DESTRUCTIVE POLICIES.

THE first of April was signalized by a startling number of strikes, labor troubles, stories of distressed workmen, discharged armies of employees and a general industrial hiatus that told of a woeful condition such as has not been heard since the memorable days of 1893. The only difference is that there was some excuse for the concatenation of ninety-three as the country was involved in a general reconstruction of financial foundations by discarding the silver standard for a gold basis. Some sophists take refuge in the theory that it is all done for political effect and that the railroads are in league with capitalized interests for the purpose of shaping public sentiment against the administration at Washington. This is about as plausible as any old storm shriveled excuse thrustled to shreds by campaigning sand lot orators, but it lacks dignity and does not appeal to any one who gives the slightest thought to the enormous economic drain the country is now experiencing. Railroads and factories discharge men when they have nothing for them to do. To do otherwise would be to invite ruin. Nothing but the superb egotism of a hide-bound partisan would suggest that trains would be cancelled and factories closed for the sake of making a puerile demonstration against the Democratic administration. If trains would add to revenue there would be no objection to maintaining costs of operation at the very highest standards. When trains are lopped off and shop forces are reduced there is something more than a political incentive which is not hard to find without a searchlight. Stagnation is due to a lack of confidence in the future that on the face is justified by the "watchful waiting" policy of President Wilson which is as vacillating as a weathervane on a country church.

For a year or more the metropolitan newspapers on the Pacific coast have been filled with reports of the construction of new steamships to ply between the Atlantic and Pacific coast in the Panama canal trade. The building of these vessels have engaged thousands of men at almost every shipyard and the work served as a stimulus to the steel industry. These vessels were ordered on the strength of the Democratic platform which pledged the administration to free tolls for American vessels engaged in the coastwise trade. Otherwise the ships would not have been built as it was a foregone conclusion they could not compete with foreign vessels with their crews of Lascars, coolies and nondescript natives gathered with a muckrake from the four corners of the universe and the jungles of Africa.

The investment cannot be recalled. The party behind the president stands impeached for violation of pledges of the most solemn character that ranks with the best performance of the three-shell man. The nation has been bamboozled and the victims are American citizens who expected better things from the men elevated to positions of trust.

Destruction instead of construction is the policy of the administration.

If any man thinks the United States would have a walkover in Mexico he is recommended to study the battle of Torreón which, according to the description of reliable correspondents, was as bloody a series of engagements as any in history. Modern armaments backed by semi-barbaric cruelty and deeds of heroism cause the recent Balkan war to dwindle to a skirmish of outposts. This naturally suggests the question: Who is putting up the money for the rebels?

Don't forget your Union Jacks. The Bonanza would not like to see any of its Democratic readers disappointed by having to appear in the Fourth of July parade with nothing better than the poor old Stars and Stripes to excite enthusiasm.

Villa is on top today. Tomorrow may bring a change in the reports, which are as conflicting as the claims of two boys over the prowess of two bull pups.

After seven lean years the fatted calf is being carved on Goldfield banquet tables and the old prods are returning for the feast.

FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH LAW IS A BAR TO SUIT TO RECOVER

The Day-Bristol Consolidated Mining Company, which lost the fight in the lower courts for the possession of the Inman lode mining claim at Bristol, has appealed the case to the supreme court of the State, says the Ploche Record.

The Inman is an unpatented claim upon which the company failed to do the annual assessment work for the year 1912. The ground was then located by A. L. Scott and his title was declared to be valid. In the last steps taken in the district court the Day-Bristol company, then under the management of George E. Bent, sought to have the case reopened but Charles Lee Horsey, Scott's attorney, set up the contention that the Day-Bristol company had no standing in the Nevada courts; upon the ground that the company had not complied with the laws of the State requiring the filing of its articles of incorporation with the secretary of State. Judge Taber, before whom the case was tried, sustained Mr. Horsey's contention.

The Inman is declared to be a valuable property and is located near the principal workings of the Day-Bristol company.
